Prayer

"Teach me to feel another's woe, To nide the faults I see; That mercy I to others show That mercy show to me -Old Hymn

"Teach me to feel another's woe."

How of: we've heard it sung.

When 'twere better had the singer asked

For a safeguard on the tongue.

Blanderous so sip has often caused

More than hal the woe wo feel.

The meeters them, such naker to make

'Tis mockery, then, such prayer to make, For it lacks sincerity's seal. "To hide the faul s I see,"

Continues this proper in song.
Yet oft we'd rether uncoper than hide.
The facts of our brother's wrong.

Forgetting that he, in his weakness. Hath temptations to us unknown 'Tis well another's faults to hide Till we have none of our own. "That mercy I to others show

That mercy show to me,"
Invites the wrath of Gott upon

Invites the wrath of God app.

The maker of the plea;
When mercy they have never shown,
Nor lightened a brother's cares.
God's mercy's shown by holding back
The answer to such prayers.

J. H. COCHEANE.

JEALOUSY AND POISON .- At Brockton. Mass, yesterday Mrs Hudwig Auderson, wife of Louis Anderson, purchased a drechm of morphice, and when her hu-band left for ble work, she mixed the suite quantity, and, dividing it into four parts, gave one each to her three obtidien -aged five, four and two years and took the fourth drink herself. She then retired to her chamber, taking the children with her, with the in-tention of never waking again. Her brother, by mere accident, returned to the house, and, finding all quiet, proceeded to investigate, and on entering his sister's room found her and the children to a support. He called for assistance, and Drs. Locke, Brown and King were summoned. After heroic efforts the mother and children were brought to consciousness, but regidity cask again, and are now expected to die at any moment. The rather attributed for he rash act is that of jealousy. She consulted a midlum, who told her that her husband will fond of other women, and sher solved to commit suicide.
